

House Spends Wads of Coin

United Press Telegram.
HARRISBURG, May 22.—The House today passed the general appropriation bill finally and sent it to the Senate. It carries about $22,000,000.
The House also passed finally the following appropriation bills, most of them being Senate bills: Greenburg Children's Aid Society, $14,000; reimbursement of counties and townships for maintenance of highways, $17,000,000; this act to take care of those communities whose officials have inadvertently failed to comply with the law; the Perry Centennial Celebration, $100,000; Westmoreland Hospital, Greenburg, $20,000; Bureau of Civil War histories, $6,000.
In addition to the appropriations the House also passed finally the following Senate bills: Kling's amendment to the Constitution so that municipalities may increase their indebtedness from 7 to 10 per cent, if three-fifths of the voters assent; the Manbeck bill providing for the State inspection of appliers.

Shady Grove Opens Thursday

If Thursday next is a good day, and Stanger H. M. Coyle has a pretty busy day with the weather man, Shady Grove will witness its banner opening day. The popular coke region resort will open for the 1911 season on Thursday. Stanger Coyle has been at the park for a month getting things in shape for the opening and he is ready.
The baseball grounds have been placed in excellent condition, a 20-ton roller having helped in the transformation. The picnic grounds have been put in splendid shape and the tables increased until 3,000 people can now eat in comfort. An orchestra of the best musicians in the county, if not in the State, has been secured, consisting of W. Paul Chapman, Louis Hitzko, Thayer Jackson, Harold Becker and Bert Davis for the dancing pavilion.
This will be the first year for picnic. The Dunbar school will picnic there Wednesday, May 24, Connelville, May 25; Uniontown, June 2, and the Charlestown Elks will be there June 14 in a train of two sections, hearing members of the order from all the other towns. If Governor Fisher is at home then he will likely accompany the delegation.
Stanger Coyle has negotiations on for a series of band concerts that will be an innovation in the coke region. The plan is to offer with the band of national reputation and give them two dates a week at Shady Grove, McKeesport and Greenburg. The best season since the park opening predicted for the park this summer.

Band Concert at Wyman Tonight

The Tenth Regiment Band will give a concert tonight on the porch of the Wyman Hotel on South Pittsburg street if the weather is favorable. The band has been trying some new music of late and the results can be judged during this evening's program.
After this month the band will have the band stand for concerts, the first being scheduled for May 30.

Comedy Company at the Soisson

The Raymond Musical Comedy Company tonight opens a week's engagement at the Soisson, coming here from Greenburg, where it held the boards at the St. Clair theatre for a week. Besides the various musical comedy and vaudeville offerings, there will be moving pictures.
The management will give away two gold watches during the week; one gentleman Wednesday night and one to ladies Friday night.

GET BUSY.
Thinking Time is Over—It's Time Now to Act.
For weeks, months, perhaps years, you have promised yourself that some day you will resolutely set about improving your financial condition. When your salary is raised—when you get certain debts paid—when you have just one more "good time"—you are going to begin to save. You will never accomplish anything as long as you keep putting it off. The way to save is to save. Begin right now—today. Bring a dollar to the First National Bank of Connelville and open a Savings Account. Let nothing prevent you from adding something to it every day. Don't do any more thinking—act! You'll feel better, and happier, the moment you have made the first deposit. The First National pays 4 per cent on all Savings Accounts.
Cross Purposes.
"Can you tell me something about the game laws around here?" asked the stranger in Crisman Gulch.
"Well," replied Three Fingersed Sam, "I could, but my advice to you would be 'if you don't know the rules of a game don't try to play it'—Washington Star.

A Poor Weak Woman

As she is termed, will endure bravely and patiently agonies which a strong man would give way under. The fact is women are more patient than they ought to be under such troubles.

Every woman ought to know that she may obtain the most experienced medical advice free of charge and in absolute confidence and privacy by writing to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, R. V. Pierce, M. D., President, Buffalo, N. Y. Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y., for many years and has had a wider practical experience in the treatment of women's diseases than any other physician in this country. His medicines are world-famous for their astonishing efficacy.

The most perfect remedy ever devised for weak and delicate women is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Lands Barren of Coal Sold to Unsuspecting Buyers in West Virginia.

Under a Clarkeburg date line, the following:

"Recent developments are expected to be followed by revelations of coal land frauds in West Virginia. A sensation is ripening and many prominent West Virginia and Pennsylvania coal land speculators will be caught in the dragnet which has already been cast."

"While here a few days ago a prominent coal and timber land dealer made the statement that he knew for a fact that hundreds of thousands of acres of 'coal land' in this State had been sold to outside people to whom it was represented that there was a nine-foot vein of coal under the land which in reality was totally devoid of coal. He stated that the fake sales had been made principally in the eastern cities and through Pennsylvania, the lands not being offered for sale in this State where they would readily be recognized as being out of the coal fields."

"It was the statement of this man that the fraud was principally the work of Pennsylvania men and that there was a great deal of the lot who were now arranging their business affairs to take up their residence in Canada at an early date. They have made the alleged fake sales to a number of widows who have invested their life insurance money in this way, with the assurance that it would make them independent of the world for years. It is also the statement of the man that there are a number of school teachers and low salaried women in the Pennsylvania towns who have been caught in the alleged fake sales."

"All over West Virginia there are sections which have been turned down by the practical coal men for the reason that there is little if any coal to be found there. This is the territory taken up by the shuck and sold to the innocent parties in the eastern cities and through Pennsylvania. In order to do this in many cases they have had fake reports made by engineers, and in this manner have been able to unload their worthless territory."

"It was but a short time ago that a twenty thousand acre tract, lying on Steer Creek, Davison county, this State, was sold in Pennsylvania at an enormous price. A like tract was sold on Cedar Creek at an enormous price, and in both instances, the coal is such that the practical operators would not touch it at any price. Much of this land is said to be barren of coal, and the little coal that exists is irregular and thus worthless."

"The frauds are looking out and the investigations which are now on bid fail to bring out some sensational order, as there are some prominent West Virginians, as well as Pennsylvanians, who are implicated. As stated, there are some innocent parties who are going to be sold into the hands of the coal men, and the coal on the reports of the engineers who are implicated in the fraud."

CAME FROM BEHIND

Keystones of Scottdale Beat the Humberts on Saturday.

The Scottdale Keystones played the Humbert in Plate team at South Side Saturday, and defeated them by a score of 14 to 0.

The Humbert team had everything in their favor until the seventh inning with the score of 6-0. Then the Keystones cornered Murphy unmercifully and piled in six scores and four in the eighth inning, defeating the Humberts by a score of 14 to 0.

The game was the playing of Yonkin on third base and the catching of Scott on first base. The time of game was 1:45. Score—Stoner—Archibald.

The Scottdale boys wish to thank Humbert for the fine treatment received at the hands of Humbert.

RHEUMATIC POISON.

Rheuma Drives It From the System and Cures Rheumatism.

Ever since A. A. Clarke secured the privilege of handling Rheuma in Connellsville, the sales have been very large.

This is due to the fact that Rheuma really does cure Rheumatism, and that it is guaranteed to cure Rheumatism or money back.

It is a quick acting remedy, too. You don't have to wait a long while for results, for Rheuma starts at once to act on the kidneys, liver, bowels and blood, and before 24 hours the poisonous Uric Acid, which causes Rheumatism, has begun to pass out of the body through the regular channels.

One 50 cent bottle will prove to any Rheumatic sufferer that Rheuma really will cure Rheumatism.

For quickest relief from acute indigestion, try English Maltine, 25 cents, at A. A. Clarke's. Mailed by Rheuma Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

The GIRL OF MY DREAMS

A NOVELIZATION OF THE PLAY BY
WILBUR D. NESBIT AND OTTO HAUERBACH
NOVELIZED BY WILBUR D. NESBIT

CHAPTER XI.

Fifteen minutes later Count von Fitz cautiously crept beneath the window and whistled. Mrs. Blazes did not answer. He whistled louder. Still no answer.

"If you are gone, I'm glad," he said. "Cheer me by not replying."

But no such cheer was in store for him. Mrs. Blazes noiselessly opened the window and whispered:

"Sh! Be careful! Did you get my hat?"

"Not yet," the Count told her. "Day has to make him. I wouldn't trust that Daffie woman. I went to another place. Her name is Teresa."

"But they won't know the model," Mrs. Blazes feared.

"I sneezing him perfectly. I tell her a shape like a smashed balloon, yellow on her outside with a garden of red poppies."

"Red poppies, you silly man!"

"Poppies or popples—day look chunt as bad to me from now on."

"You'd best go right back and stay there until it is finished," Mrs. Blazes suggested.

"No, I told them to sent it here, so it make sure I get it."

"That's good," she said, with a tone of relief.

"Now you come right out and ven der hat comes I gift it to you, and away you go."

"Come out?" she asked sarcastically. "Am I an aeroplane?"

"Lissen. Make a rope yet, and I pull you out."

"An idea!" she exclaimed with delight. "I'll tear up the sheets and things in here, tie them together in a rope, and let myself down."

"Splendid! I go and watch for der messenger mit der hat."

The Count strolled away, while she closed her window.

A young couple came walking slowly through the flower garden. It was Pigeon and Carolyn. The twilight spell had been cast upon them. Arm in arm, silently they strolled until they reached the bench.

Suddenly Pigeon said:

"Let's sit down here. I've got to see Harry through his racket, you know"—evidently continuing a conversation which had lapsed some moments before—"but after that—"

He looked down into Carolyn's eyes. "After that?" she asked, softly.

For Carolyn had all a woman's intuition, in spite of her young years, and she diagnosed the symptoms of an approaching proposal. She did not intend to accept him, but no woman will allow a proposal to get away from her. Proposals to a woman are as the scraps the Indian brave ties to his war belt.

"After that," said Pigeon, beginning to sit down, "I can look after my own affairs. And I—"

An ominous, ripping sound came. Mrs. Blazes was beginning to make her rope, but the young couple, of course, knew nothing of that. Pigeon straightened up with a jerk and tried to look unconscious. He did not know what had given away. Carolyn tried to smooth over his embarrassment by saying:

"Isn't it a lovely evening?"

Then she began to sink gracefully upon the bench, when an even more ominous ripping sound was heard. Carolyn abandoned her project with due and proper suddenness, while Pigeon mopped his brow, and said, in hushed tones that he tried to make sound matter-of-course:

"I thought earlier today that we might have some rain."

He lifted his foot to rest it carelessly upon the bench, not caring to try to sit down any more, but with the movement came a terrific rip as though something had torn loose forever.

He dropped his foot and tried to whistle a popular air.

Carolyn looked the other way and became nervous.

"I can't do a thing with my hair tonight," she observed, lifting her arms to pat it into shape.

Her arms dropped to her sides, and she said:

"I think," Pigeon said, desperately, "that the evening is the most pleasant time of the day."

He sat down, in spite of the ripping that still sounded.

"Weren't you so seated?" he asked politely.

Carolyn slowly, carefully allowed herself to sit beside him, and to her evident relief there was no further sound of ripping.

"Isn't it funny," Pigeon said, "how jocosely a fellow gets at this time of the evening, if he is all alone?"

"Now, don't get sentimental," Carolyn said, tapping him playfully on the shoulder.

Simultaneously with her movement there was a sudden, short rip. She drew back in confusion.

"Is it wrong to get sentimental?" Pigeon asked, carelessly dropping his arm behind the back of the seat and behind her, and at the same time bearing another vicious rip. He pulled his arm back as though his hand had encountered a pin.

"It's silly to be sentimental," Carolyn declared, without a motion of any sort. By this time she was afraid even to turn her eyes toward him.

"I'm silly, am I?" Pigeon asked, sulkily.

"I didn't say that," she answered. "You did!"

"I didn't!"

"You did, and I can prove it!"

"I didn't, and I can prove it!"

Pigeon attempted to arise haughtily, but—rip-rip-rip!—and he sat down again.

"I suppose," he said to her, pettishly, "you think I can't do anything?"

"You can't!" she replied, pouting, for she was angry because of the ripping, and naturally wanted to vent her wrath on the nearest object, which in this instance happened to be the poor youth. "You can't. Doing nothing is the best thing you do."

"Boarding school wit!" Pigeon retorted. "Oh, well, there are plenty of other girls!"

"And don't you forget, Mister Williams," she snapped, with a heavy accent on the "Mister," "that there are plenty of other men!"

She brought out the word "men" with all the emphasis and meaning necessary to convey to him the idea that she regarded him as a boy.

Then she arose, utterly ignoring a terrific ripping noise, and strode into the house with the cold, heartless tread of a princess. But as she went up the steps, Pigeon, had he been watching, would have seen her clutching nervously at her skirt, while the ripping went merrily on.

Pigeon got up with an air of gloom, and crumpled his belt in a tight clutch and marched off, his steps being timed by staccato rips, which he did not locate as coming from the room wherein was Mrs. Blazes.

And in that room Mrs. Blazes was feverishly tearing and tying strips of sheets, and towels, and table covers, together, all unconscious that in her strenuous efforts to effect her escape she was creating the first bump upon the pathway of a young love—but then love, as Mr. Shakespeare observed long ago, never did run smooth.

CHAPTER XII.

Mrs. Blazes opened her window silently, and lowered to the ground a rope that was fearfully and wonderfully made. She had used everything and anything, from pillow slips to the cords of the portieres. She had enough rope to let her out of a six-story building, instead of from a window a scant twelve feet from the ground. The end of the rope she tied to a table near the window. Then she looked down anxiously.

"It is dangerous," she sighed.

The Count wandered into view. He was growing weary of waiting for the hat. At sight of the rope he brightened up.

"Jump out," he suggested.

"Silly!" she said; "I've got to climb down. Steady the rope."

He took hold of the lower end and straightened the rope against the building.

"But how in the world am I to climb down?" she demanded.

"Lead yourself out slow, and den slide for life," he told her.

Their argument grew more intense. She was afraid to trust herself to the frail means of reaching the earth, and he was insistent that she should come down at once. In the midst of their talk the front door opened. Mrs. Blazes heard the sound and darted back from the window, taking the rope in with her so swiftly that she left the Count standing with his hands in the air.

Amos Medders came slowly down the steps, looking intently at the Count, whom he could not recognize in the dark. The Count had not heard him coming and could not understand why Mrs. Blazes had pulled the rope in so suddenly.

Count von Fitz was dumfounded when he was seized in a grip of iron and the cold tones of Medders came:

"What are thee doing, scoundrel?"

General Blazes came up the walk at that instant. He had his hat in his hand and was still laboring under excitement. When he saw Medders struggling with the Count, he leaped into the fray and separated them.

"What's happening?" he asked.

"Well, I am surprised," Medders said. "I thought this foolish little man here was a burglar."

"What foolish little man?" Blazes asked.

"This one they call a Count—this tutor, I thought he was, trying to break into the house."

"Wouldn't be surprised if he was," Blazes asserted, vehemently. "Isn't your daughter in there? Isn't Harry's sister in there? Those Counts will do anything to capture a girl with money."

"It is not so!" Count von Fitz retorted, rubbing his neck.

"Verily, thee has a suspicious look," Medders said to him.

"It's a gum dodd thing I happened along," Blazes observed.

"A what, friend?" Medders inquired curiously.

"A gum dodd thing—doesn't count, you know when you cuss backwards."

"Verily," Medders said, "there be times when a man could cuss sideways."

"Well," Blazes said, turning again to Count von Fitz. "It's a lucky thing for you there was nothing in the report that you were with my wife to-day. I'm a jealous man. I'm desperate when I'm roused."

"Don't rouse!" the Count begged.

"Once," the General said, "I caught a man flirting with her. What did I do?"

"What did you do?" the Count asked, weakly.

"They buried his hat," the General said. "Just his—his—hat!"

"Christ, his hat!" the Count echoed. Mentally he wondered if it had been a yellow hat with red poppies.

"Thou art a man of wrath, General," Medders said. "Once I grew angry at a man—in a youthful days."

"And what did you do to him, man of peace?" asked the General, laughing, while the Count listened nervously.

"In those days," Medders said, "I was vain of my strength and given to yielding to my angry passions. I went unto this man, and I seized him thus—"

"Before the Count could dodge, Medders held him as though in a vise."

OPENING OF A NEW PIANO HOUSE IN CONNELLSVILLE

It is with great pleasure and considerable pride that we announce the opening of a store in Connellsville.

Connellsville is not a stranger to us. We are not strangers to Connellsville. We have done tens of thousands of dollars worth of business together—covering a period of over 20 years.

Each year our business here, increases, until today it is almost imperative for us to have a place where those with whom we are dealing can come—to pay their accounts—to get their pianos tuned—to leave their orders for music rolls, etc., etc. In other words, Connellsville wants and needs a piano store where it can get the service of a Metropolitan City, and we are going to give it to them.

We are going to equip this store with a stock equal to that of a city many times as large. As far as quality is concerned—no store anywhere can show better.

We will include in the stock a line of Chickering's, Knabes and Hardmans, Grands and Uprights, and a line of Angelus and Autotone Player-pianos, that you will be very proud of.

Not such a large line, of course, but we will carry right in stock, here in Connellsville, a thoroughly representative line of all grades of pianos from the lowest price to the highest prices.

During the first month of the life of the store we will keep open every evening until 9 o'clock. Drop in, any evening. You are cordially invited and heartily welcome. Even if you are not contemplating buying a piano, we will have a little informal music anyway.

MANUFACTURERS' CHANCE

To Advertise Their Products in the Foreign Markets.

The American manufacturers and producers are invited to file with each American Consulate a statement respecting the line of goods they have to offer foreign buyers. Heretofore American manufacturers have had the privilege of filing catalogues in the Consulates, but the diversity of size and form of catalogues and other printed matter thus far filed, and the filing of this printed matter in English in Consulates requiring other languages, has entailed unnecessary time and expense in clerical force, correspondence and translation work in the consulates. It is now proposed to obviate these disadvantages by asking each manufacturer to prepare a brief of his catalogue or printed matter according to a standard specification, these cards to be classified in card index files under proper headings, and to print same in the various commercial languages.

The importance to American commerce of this co-operative plan arranged between the Department of State and the Commercial Bureau Company for placing with each American consulate an encyclopedia of the industries of the United States, can scarcely be over-estimated. It is the perfection of system, whereby the manufacturer, through the American consular service, may reach all the important consumers of his products throughout the world.

The system permits of additions and corrections being sent at regular intervals to the consulates' files, so that they are at all times a living, growing up to date directory of American industries such as is impossible by any other plan or method.

To make the work comprehensive and valuable to each, it is essential that the co-operation of all manufacturers and producers interested be secured.

The classification, compilation and distribution of the cards in cabinets is the work of the Commercial Bureau Company, which, in accordance with arrangements with the Department of State, Washington, D. C., is done without charge to the manufacturer. Full particulars will be given by the Commercial Bureau Company 50 Church street, New York City.

Plays and Players.

Natario Rogers will have six sketches out next season.

Albert Chevalier wants to try another starring tour in this country.

Eleanor Kent is appearing in a one-act operetta called "Love via Aeroplane."

Pauline Perry has become the leading lady of a stock company in New Haven, Conn.

Marie Walworth, who has been playing with William Gillette, is to return to vaudeville.

Mildred Holland will go into vaudeville with a condensed version of "The Power Behind the Throne."

"The Life Guardsman" is to be produced in London by Charles Frohman and George Edwards next season.

Charles Dillingham will produce next season, a play by Eugene Walter, called "The Assassin," said to be based upon the murder of the New York

Italian detective, Petrosino some time ago in Italy.

Helen Lowell has been engaged for "The Hen Pecks."

King Alfonso of Spain has offered a prize of $5,000 to be competed for by all the orchestras of the kingdom.

The Russian dancers, Pavlova and Mordkin, have recently had a quarrel in London and will not dance together.

And Save $10.00 in Thirty Minutes.

$10
Buys Suits
Worth $15,
$16.50 to $18

Your clothing store has an unexpected suit bargain for you: And it is due to the lateness of spring and lack of warm days that should have come last month. When clothing makers were busiest prospects were brighter for a banner clothing year. They made more suits and better suits. Every reader of this knows the cause, if not the effect, of the first slump. Spring was late with her sun shiny days, causing many retailers to cancel orders of made up suits. Other causes, unimportant to relate here made the suit piles in the warerooms grow larger. Quick action is required in the clothing world. Our buyers in the office we maintain on Broadway, New York, waited until the time was ripe and when clothing--high grade models--reached the lowest notch in years--they jumped in and bought.

Among thousands of suits they skimmed the cream--250 choice well sized, properly color ranged Spring and Summer Suits they selected. Today they are in the house but not one can be sold until Wednesday, this week, when every man will share equally in the distribution.

BASEBALL.

CONNELLSVILLE LOST

To Uniontown High School at Uniontown Saturday.
Connellsville High lost to Uniontown Saturday afternoon at Uniontown 3 to 1. Inability to hit Coughenour was the cause of Connellsville's downfall. Edmunds pitched a splendid game and with a little blagging behind him would have stood an even chance of being returned a minor. Baer for Uniontown stole home with the first run of the game. Chamberlain, the Uniontown short stop, bit for the circuit in the seventh inning.

NORTH END LOST.

To Uniontown Team on Saturday by Score of 11 to 8.

Nearly 700 spectators witnessed a close contest between two amateur teams Saturday at Sligo field. Aldridge pitched for North End Juniors and started the game with a walk and keeping it up all through the game until the last part of the eighth when Manager Coles entered the box having five strikeouts in two innings. The score was 11 to 8. In the last half of the ninth Uniontown quit. The Juniors were too stout-hearted to take the game so let it go as the score stood. Up to date the Juniors have won five games and lost one.

Baseball Notes.
With Russell Ford in the box the Highlanders become very near being world beaters.
Manager Doolin of the Quakers copped a real regular pitcher when he signed Alexander the great.
Major league scouts are sizing up George Allen Davis, Jr., the Williams College pitcher who has trimmed both Yale and Princeton.
Maddox and O'Connor, the former pirate butlers, are working for the Kansas City club of the American Association.
Mike Denlin may join the Boston Red Sox. Mike has been out of the game two years but claims that he is still there as a hitter.

In the recent Boston-Cincinnati series the pitchers got all that was coming to them. Ten home runs were hit during the series and the scorers had hard work to keep count of the singles, doubles and tripples.
Eddie Collins the star second sacker of the Champions says that the Athletics will repeat this season and put Detroit down with the tunnel diggers.
Pitcher Frank Smith will now have a chance to show his wares to Manager Grifth of the Cincinnati Reds. Frank was a star with the White Sox for several years.
Accident insurance amounting to $100,000 has been taken out on the Cleveland players. If this is true, Bill Dahlen should be able to take out $500,000 on the Brooklyn Dodgers.
If a rule were passed prohibiting a city having two good ball teams at the same time St. Louis fans wouldn't care and Philadelphia fans would kick their heads off. Funny, how unreasonable some people are.
